How requests become solutions

People and businesses often need help defining the work and finding someone who can do it locally.

Describe the need

A customer explains the result they want through the web platform or Android app.

Clarify and match

The team reviews the request and identifies a relevant specialist or service provider.

Agree on next steps

The parties discuss scope and a possible offer. The team can follow up as the work progresses.

What the next pilot could test

Start with a few service categories and a small group of local partners.

Request quality	Measure how many submissions include enough information to identify a next step.
Partner response	Measure time to first response and the share of requests that receive a useful proposal.
Service economics	Track the effort required to handle each request and test a paid service model where it fits.

We welcome proposals on the pilot budget and partnership terms.
